LEARNS OF WIFE'S SUDDEN DEATH OVER THE RADIO

Sch. Corinthian, Capt. Michael J. Driscoll, of this port, put into Liverpool last night for repairs to her engine, she having snapped her engine shaft and worked her way in under riding sail and foresail.
While the craft was in Liverpool harbor and the crew below listened to the radio, a message was flashed through the air from the local station informing all craft to watch for the Corinthian and notify Capt. Driscoll that his wife Helen had died suddenly. The message was heard by the captain over the Corinthian's radio, and he immediately made preparations to have the craft brought home by one of the crew while he left for Yarmouth on today's boat.
